

Web Development - Student Support Internship

The Web Development - Student Support Intern is a professional who provides value to improving the work and education experience for the organization and students.

On the web development side, the intern works within the organization to create and maintain websites and web applications. They are responsible for designing, developing, and testing web pages using programming languages such as HTML, CSS, JavaScript and other relevant frameworks. Furthermore, they work with applications such as Jira, Confluence, Salesforce, Microsoft Office etc. to develop and implement creative solutions to streamline communication, productivity across multiple departments. They continue to learn about the organization's products and services, while researching, presenting, discussing, and implementing web application workflow, design changes or updates accordingly. The student support intern reports to the Executive Director and completes tasks as requested by key members of the organization.

On the student support side, the intern responsible for assisting in the instruction, in-class and out-of-class support and providing one-on-one tutoring to students. They assist in the development and implementation of the coursework materials including slide decks, in-class activities, student websites, and other related content that is instrumental to the development and success of students. The student support intern reports to the course instructor and completes tasks as requested.